DOWN HOME FAB

Monday Nights at 8 PM on HGTV
RCTv Channel 90 & 390 on HD

How could we publish the February Issue of RCTV Times and NOT mention HGTV's newest series, Down Home Fab—which premiered on Monday, January 16th with at least 3 more episodes to go. We cannot NOT talk about it.

ESPECIALLY since, the show's filming location is just hours away in Sioux Falls! Pretty cool, right? And, like most of you know from living here, there is literally just 3 degrees of separation between each of us (if we were to use Bacon's Law, Google it, if you don't understand that) which makes it ever MORE exciting to watch the show and get to know the co-hosts because you just might see a family, a farm, a place, or someone you might know!

Chelsea (Houska) DeBoer and her husband, Cole DeBoer, just landed a dream gig as co-hosts of their very own HGTV reality show, Down Home Fab. With that, they are not only making a name for themselves, they are putting rural South Dakota living and "South Dakota Glam" on the map, one of Chelsea's signature designs, a blend of edgy and modern, down-home style of living.

How did Chelsea and Cole get the gig? Well, while the DeBoers were building their own dream home in Sioux Falls, their design efforts grabbed the attention of Chelsea's Instagram followers—a million of them—they followed the couples's home renovation ride. By the way, she has some 6.6 million Instagram followers!

It's not the first time Chelsea has filmed a TV series. The former MTV Reality Star was in Teen Mom 2, Chelsea had discussed in interviews that growing up has always "dreamed big" as a child and now they can't believe it has actually happen.

If you haven't watched an episode of Down Home Fab, you should. It's pretty entertaining to watch this young, free-spirited couple as they manage 4 kids, farm animals, and help other families redesign their homes with their impressive design sense.
