

ABOUT THE AFFORDABLE CONNECTIVITY PROGRAM

The Affordable Connectivity Program is a federal government benefit program operated by the FCC that helps connect families and households struggling to afford internet service. The Affordable Connectivity Program provides:

- Up to $30/month discount for broadband service
- Up to $75/month discount for households on qualifying Tribal lands

The Affordable Connectivity Program benefit is non-transferable and is limited to one monthly service discount and one device discount per household. If the program ends, or if a household becomes ineligible for the benefit, the household will be subject to the provider's regular rates, terms, and conditions.

Who is Eligible?

A household is eligible for the Affordable Connectivity Program if the household income is at or below 200% of the Federal Poverty Guidelines, or if a member of the household meets at least one of the criteria below:

- Participates in certain assistance programs, such as SNAP, Medicaid, Federal Public Housing Assistance, SSI, WIC, or the federal Lifeline Program
- Participates in one of several Tribal specific programs, such as Bureau of Indian Affairs General Assistance, Tribal Head Start, Tribal TANF, or Food Distribution Program on Indian Reservations
- Participates in the National School Lunch Program or the School Breakfast Program, including through the USDA Community Eligibility Provision
- Received a Federal Pell Grant during the current award year
